FROM OUR FAIR CORRESPONDENT.

They talk much of the stringency of the money market now, and say that large manufacturers are obliged to pay a premium on money to keep up their pay-rolls. I pray this may not affect any readers of the LIGHT OF TRUTH; for I want you all to come to the Fair. It is worth the sacrifice of anything save the necessaries of life. You do not need an extensive wardrobe, for no one has time to look at you. One dress with two waists, a jacket, umbrella, and several pairs of shoes constitute a model outfit if you are a woman. Neither do you need a very full purse. Editors have disgraced themsalves in making capital of the stories of exorbitant prices here. Indeed, I believe the true Chicagoan cares less for the dollar you bring, than that the stranger within her gates shall be well entertained and, of course, return home to sing her praises. The spirit of kindness is abroad throughout the city and within the Exposition grounds. Authorities and exhibitors are everywhere glad to give information, while even the street-car conductors are patient and conscientious in caring for the visitor. Chicago has spread for you such a feast as shall never be seen again in this generation To another century we grant limitless possibilities.

With what exaltation of spirit every true American realizes that the presiding genius of the Fair is art. They have long thought us a shrewd inventive people. The centennial gave us high rank along the line of these talents. Art, alas! held down her head among the nations across the water. One hundred years ago they said we had contributed almost nothing to art or literature, but to-day our Fair bears the palm of beauty over every preceding one. Not Venice in her best days, Rome under Augustus, nor Greece under Pericles, ever offered for the gaze of man any such marvel of architectural beauty as encircles the Great Basin.

After you retire home from the Fair, your friends all clamor to have you tell what it is like. Can you tell them? I can not. I wish I could have analyzed the feelings of Captain Concas the day that he and his crew were brought from the caravels into the Great Basin, through the arch of the 1 er style. This arch supports the spirited Quadriga-that group of four horses drawing the triumphal chariot of Columbus. Two graceful female figures guide each a pair of the fiery steeds. The discoverer is poised lightly on his sword and a proud satisfaction is written on his face. As Captain joy either at will, and when I desire to rusticate I can throw Concas passed under this arch, the emotions of the moment must have, indeed, been akin to those of the hero above him.

The noble and dignified Republic next overshadowed him and he was in the America of to day! At the other end of the Basin rose the jaunty Columbian Fountain, whose grace and airy beauty relieves the mejesty of the Republic. Beyond the fountain bands mingled Spanish and American airs, in front of the Administration building, the architectural nucleus of the Fair. 'Let us leave our Spanish captain to form his own impressions while we talk a little about this dropped in at the lecture hall to see what was going on. I marvelous building. A Racy Letter from Buffalo, N. Y.

(To the Editor for the LIGHT OF TRUTH.)

Being an investigator in affairs practical as well as spiritual, concluded this Summer to attempt a restful vacation away from the rush and aristocratic's wirl of camp-life and accordingly took a run down to cool, wide Buffalo. My anticipations were fully realized, for Spiritualists here are scarcer than cathedrals at Lily Dale, this is just what I wanted. As a resting spot I selected one of the busiest hotels in the city, and when I want to study I simply sit away from the window and enjoy the consciousness of quiet, unmolested retirement within, and active, surging life without. So, you see, I can en on my things, slip note book and pencil into my bag, and take a long, cool trolley to one of the large parks. No one here seems to care how you look, what you are looking at, or where you are going, their mission may be the same as yours and it is none of your business. And should my soul yearn upon a few good Spiritualists who have not yet gone to camp and who, perhaps, won't take the trouble. In the middle of June I happened to be in Buffalo and engagement and that the society had decided to fill out the month with local talent. The mediums were Mrs. A. G. Atcheson and Mr. J. J. Grant. The lady's tests were clearly defined and all recognized. She has large, soulful eyes of a preceding his trance state. I perceived clairvoyantly the spirit form of a tall, dignified, scholarly looking man rise up ses over the medium, who for a moment swayed to and fro, several times raised his right arm in a startled, clutching manner as if falling, and arose and stepped to the stand. The control then stepped behind him and applied or withheld his fully himself. The object seemed to be to teach him to lay aside his editorial habit of working from notes and to trust himself fully to his guides. The lecture was deep, scholarly and conservative, replete with glowing revelations, and lasted an hour. It is evident that this young man, for he is but Look now at the Liberal Arts Building because it is the forty-four years old, has been a medium from childhood, but has not been aware of his gifts. It is said his tests in private giving the most satisfactory impersonations in character and chosen spokesman on all occasions, the superintendent of man." Through his push and energy the lecture room has been kept open to the public through the Summer months, worker in he cause, Mr. J. W. Dennis, taking the rostrum alsient and composed of those that might hang on until the opening of the regular season.

I desire to mention another pleasant Sunday afternoon spent at this hall, when Mr. Dennis. Mr. Grant, and a young lady, Miss Taylor, occupied the platform. She also is a good circle medium, but rarely drawn out in public. On this oc casion she was controlled by an Italian songstress, who treated the audience to one of the most beautiful improvi- doubt. forth a number of excellent tests, fully recognized. During all this time she had seized and retained Mr. Grant's hand, paying glowing tribute to that medium's magnetism. The picture was novel and spiritually cordial, the more so as this every one to him for his long years of faithful and unpaid was but their second meeting. This was followed by a conference, in which Mr. George Montague, Mrs. Stewart, and Dr. Shaw were among the speakers. The Fall season will find themselves unable to give up advantageously, while the Perhaps you are now sufficiently weary to walk along the society proper is successfully and contently paying its own

Mr. Henry Van Buskirk is president of the society and Mrs. Atcheson vice president. Mr. J. W. Dennis will represent the society's interests at Chicago in September.

There are several private mediums here who deserve mention. Dr. and Mrs. Alexander. The former quietly pursues his practice and is rarely seen among the workers. His isolation, in fact, amounts to bitterness, though I have as yet met none who have laid anything in his way. Mrs. Alexander is a cheerful body, paying dues both with the society and its would be branch, and generously bestowing tests where they will do most good. Mrs. Robinson, of Ferry Street, and Mrs. Hulbert, of Morgan Street, are true workers and fine medithe gondolas. Forget yourself and yield to the fascination of ums. Messrs. Dennis, Hulbert, and Snell are excellent healing mediums; George Montague is another good medium. and Mrs. Montague is the leading lady of the society.

> Mrs. Van Buskirk, her son Henry, and his demure little wife possess a splendid influence, and are ready workers, both at home and in public. Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Davis and their daughter Miamma, with whom Mr. Grant developed his surprising gifts, have, perhaps, the best clairvoyant circle in the city. Mrs. Grant is the fifth member, and in her quiet knowledge seeking way, gives many bright tests. All but Mrs. Davis are clarrvoyant, she being impressional. Many new members have been permitted to go in and out of this circle, greatly marring its influences, but it is hoped they may organize permanently and with the best material. Mrs. Smith, of Pratt Street, comes in for a large share of credit as a me dium and so does Mrs. Simmons. There are a number o fortune tellers who have for years striven for recognition as mediums, but this illusion holds good only among their deluded patrons. They attend the lectures merely to gossip and to criticise the tests given by recognized local mediums, many an investigating soul being thrown back into doubt by their

Lake Pleasant Camp.

Lake Pleasant is the mother of New England Spiritualist camp meetings.

As I write these words-August 10th-the splendid Cade Band from Worcester is discoursing classic music from the hotel band stand. The harmony floats through the responsive pines, and the happy people in 500 tents and cottages drink in the sweet notes in spite of their social chat.

Life at Lake Pleasant these bright August days is something like a dream of the Elesian neld. Little children frolic, beautiful women glide among the pines, solid and thought ful men take a few days' relaxation from the cares of business and find some of the romance of their youth revived by the The moon-lit evenings are made charming by the graceful meeting. Everybody is smiling, even the grumblers relex their faces a little, so great is the prevalent happiness. The new auditorium is the theme on every tongue, and

A temporary speakers' stand has been erected on the ne site across the ravine bridge to the highlands, and some plain seats for the audience. Meetings will be held in the new auditorium the balance of the season, when the weather is pleasant. The location is in a part of the grove more distant from the railroad. This is done because the old auditorium is so near that the rush of trains often disturb the meetings President Daily opened the session July 30th by an able address, which was followed in the afternoon by Mrs. Sarah Byrnes, a veteran speaker of wide reputation. Mrs. Lillie gave three trenchant and bold addresses while here August 4th, 5th, and 6th.

The conferences have been very spicy so far. Beside the valuable contributions of President Dativ, Mrs. Byrnes, Mrs. Twing, James Dixon, Mrs. Lillie, Mr. Banks, and others, and a number of mediums and individuals from the audience have added to the discussion of various themes,

A large number of mediums of the mental phases are here, most noted of which is John Slater, who is employed by the association to give spirit delineations at the close of the seat. He is a great favorite with the Buffalo society, their public addresses, and who kindly attends many of the confer ences and drops in his tests and peppery criticisms. Mrs. Abbie Burnham has arrived and cordially greeted by her hosts

> Mrs. Carrie Twing is located at 6 Lyman street, where she writes private spirit letters and holds "Ikabod" seances. She is on the program and will speak the 12th and 24th. She will leave the camp August 16th for a week, in which she will address the National Grange at Chautauqua, N. Y., in the regu lar course, also on another day speak to the Pennsylvania Patrons of Husbandry at Montrose in that State, returning on the 23d.

Mis. Clara Banks has made a flying visit here and deliver ed one of her electric, short speeches at the conference.

Mrs. Tillie Reynolds, just returned from Texas, has settled in her pretty cottage on the "bluff." She thinks Lake Pleas ant the sweetest home on earth. G. V. Cordingly has just arrived from St. Louis. He could not stay away, though he has been quite ill. Jacob's Well and the pine air will bring the glow of health to him, no

President Daily enters into the work with great earnest ness. He is bound to have a new auditorium, and heads party of men and women who are clearing the ground and putting in the seats for temporary use. Dr. Joseph Beals, the venerated late president, is enjoying his first Summer at Lake Pleasant, free from official care. For nineteen years he has presided and seen the camp grow from an infant to a giant. The kindliest feelings are extended by

As yet there is but one materializing medium here, Mr. Samuel Thompson. This gentleman allows himself to be bound with strong cord in the cabinet in the most secure ble to move, faces appear in the cabinet aperture and various physical manifestations take place—quite convincing to many people that the seance is not a fraud. It is better to have fewer mediums and have them honest.

Mrs. Stoddard Gray-Suider does not occupy her cottage

Mr. Snider has sold his lot on First avenue for $300.

John Slater has hired the "L'zzie Lincoln" cottage for the season, and, with his wife, baby, and friends, makes that location quite breezy. The baby is one of the pets of the

One of the most hearty dedications of a cottage ever given here was that of Miss Emma Raymond, on the "Park" lately. Some twenty short speeches were made, among those of Dr. Beals and Judge Daily, under the chairmanship of Silas Mason. Appropriate singing enhanced the pleasure of the exercises, especially the solo by Mrs. Fred Haslam. Miss Raymond has a cozy cottage, enwreathed with flowers and shrubs and protected by tall pines. A dutiful daughter-she makes the sunset of her father linger.

Secretary Young and wife keep headquarters ready for all, and the Wildwood Messenger, the camp paper, full of interesting camp news, the result of their constant search for items, the street sayings of Themis still crystallize the cream of Women stroll around the camp without bonnets, and visit from cottage to cottage with a freedom from ceremony that is truly delightful to see.

The meeting will continue till August 28th, during which time will be heard Willard J. Hull, August 11th, 13th, and 15th. On August 17th and 18th Hon. A. B. French will deiver four of his spiendid prose poetic lectures, and on August 231, 25th, and 27th Mr. J. Frank Baxter will give the closing lectures, supplemented by his remarkable seances.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Hayes are the vocalists for the season. They lead the singing also when the congregation joins. The new Hymnal, issued by the writer, is being introduced and finds a popular response. It can be found at head-quarters or at No. 6 Lyman street. Price 10 cents.

Dr. Towne has sold out and gone. He was known as the most genial looking "kicker" Lake Pleasant ever had. We shall miss his portly form, his smiling face, and his rasping criticisms. He talks of going to Summerland, Cal. If he does may the mild climate of that distant land sweeten his cup of life and ripen his soul for a blissful heaven. As a magnetic physician he stands high in New England, and the Pacific shore will get a good practitioner in his line. His cot-tage on Chestnut square here passed into the possession of

W. F. Peck called on Lake Pleasant on his way to the new camp meeting at I, ke George (Caldwell) which opened August 12th for three weeks. Mr. Peck will be one of the principal speakers at this meeting. Mr. Peck is engaged for the Springfield, Mass., society for the coming year. He is a deep thinker, a close reasoner, and possesses fine dramatic and musical talent, having one of the sweetest voices for sing-

Dr. E. P. Gleason, of Keene, N. H., is to be found at Putman Cottage, Broadway.

Landlord Bernard complains that his dearly bought privilege for boarding the campers is severely infringed by some of the cottagers, and hints that the hotel will be closed next season if this is not stopped, and that the band and the electric light will not make Lake Pleasant musical and bright next season. Why does he not enforce the law? He has the power to do so.

The railroad commissioners of the State have forbidden the railroads from selling tickets on Sunday at lower rates than on week days. Hence some of the excursion trains from Springfield, Westfield, Fitchburg, and elsewhere are cut off. This is believed to be a move of Christian bigotry.

Miss Jennie Rhind will start her "mystic circle" in the Indian camp soon. She says the day will come for it when the new auditorium is occupied. Dr. Provincial, the former boy medium, is on Montague street. The boy has now matured to a man Mrs. Sherley, near the bridge, continues her psychometric delineations. Fred Haslam and wife and friends fill two large new cottages on the Highlands. Prof. Cadwell, the veteran mesmerist, holds forth daily in the old "Hull Corns" tent on Owasso street, with J. S. Hart

Mrs. J. J. Clark, on Lyman street, finds Lake Pleasant very conducive to her health.

Mrs. Cashman, the guitar medium, holds the guitar as of old, and the spirits touch the strings, bringing forth music. A. E. Willis, at Putnam cottage, can show you wonderful things made by a jack knife.

Lake Pleasant is bound to hold its own and grow. The water, the air, the location, and the people all combine to make it the chief Mecca for Spiritualists in the New England

Notes from Lake Brady Camp.

Last week Walter Howell gave from the "atomic theory" an interesting explanation of that which is so often seen at seances, viz., matter passing through matter. Said he: "Every atom has its aura or atmosphere surrounding it, which prevents it from ever touching another atom, no matter how closely they are packed together. By spirit chemistry the atoms of an object, however condensed, are simply widened sufficiently to let the atoms of another object pass between them, just as the fivgers of the right hand may be passed between those of the left.'

The metaphysical explanation, however, denying the existence of atoms as material objects, is equally plausable. But, after all, how it is done is not so important to mortals who can not do it, anyway, as to establish the wonderful fact that it is done at all.

A gentlemen on the grounds testified to witnessing two wooden rings cut by a skeptic from two different trees and carefully carved, without crack or blemish, taken to a seance and instantly united one link within the other, and can not now be separated without breaking. The lectures during the week have been quite interesting, but the fact that Maggie Gaule has returned drew most of the crowds that are not ready for philosophical teachings. The sincerety of the medium, together with the accuracy of the tests, would convince any reasonable being not held by mere prejudice that more than human agency was at work demonstrating immortality through the stupendous truth that man survives the death of the body in a continued pro-

It was very touching to witness Miss Gaule's emotion once called out by an humble colored woman, who, at great personal sacrifice, had come to camp hoping to hear from her dear ones. Unable to get a sitting she was going away discouraged. At 9 o'clock in the morning, just before conference, she decided to go, but was impressed to stay, and the whole revelation she had prayed for come through Miss Gaule, even her thoughts. The audience was dismissed, but a number of friends lingered around the two-the humble recipient and the heaven-inspired messenger. With tears streaming down her cheeks Miss Gaule then and there reconsecrated herself to the work, declaring that nothing but death should ever silence her mortal lips against these messages and truths entrusted to her by immortals. Persecuted by the Church of Rome that nursed her, separated from her kin by this her earth mission, the inspired words of old seem here hers by divine right, "When thy father and mother forsake thee I will take thee up," for the invisible angel hands are surely sustaining her.

Oscar Edgarly closes this week with his first lecture here, but of him we will speak again.

State lecturer, Solon Thayer, of the People's party, has given two intensely interesting discourses on our present financial situation, ventilating some of the rank frauds by which even the poor washerwomens' hard earnings are clipped with the coupons of the bondholder, and how wholesale robbery more criminal than murder was committed against the people through the government in the demonitization of silver.

A CALIFORNIA MIRACLE OF HEALING.

DR I. R. BUCHANAN

The healing of the sick by the spirit power of both modern and ancient spirits has become familiar to all who are advanced in spiritual science, but we have had no more remarkable and thoroughly anthentic example than the healing of Mrs. Walton, of Los Angeles, Cal., in a family and Church unfamiliar with Spiritualism, reported fully in the L. A Times of July 17, '93, which I would command to the attention of all progressive minds.

The statements of the Times are entirely convincing and undisputed. I have examined the case and see no reason to entertain any doubt. The only inaccuracy in the Times' statement is that the white and rigid condition mentioned did not occupy the whole limb, but only its lower portion. There is no other exaggeration ; on the contrary, the case was even worse than this report gives it. The fracture included the hip bone, and also a discoloration of the former, and she had formidable abdominal tumors which the reporter omitted to mention.

Mrs. W. is a woman of vigorous and independent mind, and was not led into her views of healing by any influence of others. She thought much on medical subjects, and gave great attention to medical science in connection with her own case. As to her claim that she received her healing from Jesus, I am willing to accept it. Jesus and his cotemporaries have made many marvellous cures of which records have been preserved, and many healers have been conscious of his co-

Of her active interest in human welfare and great spiritnal power, I have had evidence that leaves no room for doubt. Of this I shall have more to say hereafter.

Following is the article taken from the paper referred to: The Gospel Tabernacle, which meets in Temperance Temple Hall, was the scene of an unusual spectacle yesterday morning. At II o'clock a woman, who has been a resident of Los Angeles for a number of years, and who is well known to many citizens; a woman who for thirteen years has been a sufferer, who for four years has not stepped but with crutch, and who for two years and three months has never until a week ago left her bed but to be lifted, entered the Church unaided, and with a firm step walked up the aisle and addressed the congregation. The woman was Mrs. Ada U. Walton of Casco street, and her healing from illness, which has apparently brought her very near to death's door, was instantaneous. Her total recovery to perfect health was worked in less than fifteen minutes.

To hear from her own lips Mrs. Walton's story of her cure, one would say that the age of miracles had not yet passed. Still, Mrs. Walton would say that there was no miracle. "The Lord was present and He healed me." That was

Mrs. Walton is 30 years of age, of pleasing address modest and thoroughly womanly in manner, with a good command of language and a direct and earnest form of speech that wins attention. She is a thinking woman, a reasoning woman, and her own recital has weight.

Both from Mrs. Walton and from a host of reliable friends it is gleaned that for thirteen years she had been an invalid, and much of that time a cripple. At that date she sustained a double facture of her left leg, it being broken at the thigh and above the ankle. Arising from the fractures and the fall which caused them, a tumor developed, which, in the course of years, became very distressing. She tried medicines, she sought relief from doctors, she changed climate, and journeyed even as far as California and back to the East, but attained no permanent relief. In 1887, in Sacramento, she was thrown from a street car and her leg was again broken in the same places, with another break of the bones of the ankle and also of the top of the foot. She was now a cripple, and for severa years could only walk by the use of a crutch and cane Being ambitions she naturally overtaxed the knitting bones and the ankle was badly overstrained, so that, until a week ago, a ridge at the point where the bones came together extended entirely around the ankle, so deep that one's finger could easily be laid in it. After a time she became relieved of her tumor, but was attacked with hemorrhages from the lungs, and at last became almost a prisoner on her bed. Her great chair stood near, and into this she was lifted by attendants and for a time was wheeled to her meals, but there have been weeks and months when it was impossible to lift her. Indeed, during the past thirteen years eight of them have been spent on the bed, almost helpless.

When thirteen years of age Mrs. Walton was baptized and hecame a member of the Episcopal Church. She was not, particularly devout. She read her Bible, as a Christian woman does, and she found great comfort in it. Gradually certain portions of it began to fasten themselves in her memory, and she pondered over them. The idea of healing entirely through faith was coming to her, entirely unsought; she had never met a person so healed, but it was seeming to her and more possible that healing might be wrought. For a year the faith that she was one day to receive this divine healing has been present with her. She did not know when or how it would be accomplished; she only believed that it would come. Later, as the news of her belief was communicated, praying men and women and those who have experienced healing began to call upon her. Some believed that she would be healed; more believed that death would claim

For a long time previous to this physicians and surgeons had decreed that there was no help for her but in having her leg amputated, and she was only waiting to become stronger to submit to the operation. In her then weak condition the trial would have been dangerous.

As she became more and more impressed that the great change was near at hand, she discarded medicines, yet left them on the table directly by her pillow. She would not be tempted by them, and in the time of her greatest agony when her muscles were drawn by cramping and pain seemed unendurable, she set her teeth into her lips until the blood almost followed, and clinched her nails until they cut the flesh, but she never yielded. One psalm in particular comforted her during this trial, and upon a portion of it she dwelt almost constantly, repeating it over and over: "Who forgiveth all thine iniquities, who healeth all thy diseases, who redeemeth thy life from destruction." She was consecrat ng herself to God, the divine healer, the great physician. But the hard part of the consecration was to learn to say, "Work thy will in me." She wanted to be healed, and it was hard to say that the Lord should keep her a cripple all her life if he so willed. To her mind it was this which has, in a measure, hindered earlier restoration.

Many now visited Mrs. Walton almost daily, and were familiar with her physical condition. Her limb was colorless, cold, rigid, as nearly as possible resembling death. There seemed no more healthy action in it than in the limb of a corpse. Her foot was frightfully distorted, swollen, with the toes bent directly underneath, so it seemed impossible to relax them without breaking. For three weeks she has been her bed. Her friends were not so sanguine as she, and when tians in Turkish Koordistan.

declined to pray. "Why will you not pray for Mrs. Walton, mamma " a little daughter asked. And the mother's answer was, "Because I can not pray for her with her leg on," Mrs. Walton, however, kept her faith. She knew that in good time something was coming.

One week ago yesterday she was passing the day as usual suffering. Her face was drawn with lines that agony had marked. Her husband was with her, and an attendant who ling country to Mr. Riley's, one of the most lovely inland lohad waited upon her for a year, and a friend was calling on the family. Mrs. Walton says that she felt that for twenty- to call a halt; for the angel hosts design to visit that spot, for four hours her faith had been assailed as never before. The friend looked at the disposed, which made us feel perfectly at home. In Mr. foot and saw how rigid it seemed. Presently all passed into Riley there seemed to be a genuine feeling for humanity; and another room, and the invalid was left alone. It was about in such a disposition to relieve the distressed we felt that we fifteen minutes before 3 o'clock, in the afternoon. Suddenly, must be in the presence of something higher, or foreign to with nothing to warn her of the immediate change, a great earth. And then a voice sounded, as plain as though some one had spoken from an adjoining room, and it Riley was sitting near his secretary, he drew from one of its said: "Thy faith hath made thee whole. Arise!" "It was the campartments a package of letters from which he assorted voice of the Lord," to quote the one who heard it.

What followed can hardly be described. The healed hurrying in. She asked for her wrapper, and when they swung herself out of bed, she stood upon her feet, she took a it thrilled ber in every part, and she felt a warm wave of new life coursing down her dead limb, while her foot staightened under her weight. She was the only calm one at walked alone to the carriage, entered it without help, which she had not done for thirteen years, ascended the church steps, and afterward walked some distance down Temple street at the close of service, without detriment or apparent fatigue. She claims that she is perfectly well; that she is wholly healed and as strong as ever; that she has "touched Jesus." Whatever has been done, she says that there is bo part of the miracle is that all swelling has disappeared that was consequent upon the broken bones, and the ridge about her ankle which for so many years disfigured it, is not disrestored to her entire being.

Rev. W. C. Stevens, pastor of the Gospel Tabernacle, has known Mrs. Walton for several months, has examined her now finds it to all appearances perfect. His remarks yester- bulling me along inside the curtain and there dematerialized, day upon the restoration were very touching.

At the close of Mrs. Walton's experience and the pastor's words the following members of the large congregation, which filled the church, gave their testimony as having been personal witnesses to the changes which the past week had wrought in a physical way. Mrs. H. E. Hollister, No. 125 East Fourth street, member of First Methodist Episcopal Church; Mrs. Charles H. Brown, No. 834 Grandview avenue, member of First Baptist Church; Mrs. M. C. Gilpin, No. 520 South Spring Street, of Immanuel Presbyterian Church; Miss C. J. Cooper, with Mrs. Walton, member of the First Baptist Church; Mrs. Wear and daughter, No. 312 Clay Street, members of First Baptist Church; Mrs. M. E. A. Hallowell, No. 244 West Eighteenth Street, member Gospel Tabernacle; Mr. and Mrs. A. Polson, No. 340 Olive Street, members of First Presbyterian Church (of which church Mr. Polson is an elder); Miss Anna Mansfield, Seventh and Beacon Streets, member of Christ Episcopal Church; Mrs. Potts, Ninth Street member of First Baptist Church. There were many others. Without exception, the testimony of each and all of these was direct and sincere to prove in all particulars the distressing physical state in which Mrs. Walton has lain for years. It had not seemed possible that anything but amputation could save her life, and her system was in no condition to ago I accidentally heard of a camp meeting in Summerland, arrant that. Some have been skeptics in regard to divine healing, but they spoke now with a solemn wonder of what listening to lectures and tests from different speakers and God had done.

Mr. Walton testified, with tears in his voice, to his wife's strange recovery. He had never seen such suffering in any person, and of late they had been much aggravated. He is not a believer in Christ, and can not explain what has occurred. Both Mr. Walton and the attendant at first believed, when Mrs. Walton arose, that she was losing her reason.

Later in the day, at the Walton cottage, on Casco Street George Hart of No. 902 Buena Vista Street was met, and was very willing to give his testimony. He was the friend who was present at the healing, and was staggered at the sight of Mrs. Walton rising from a sick-bed where she had lain for years. He is a member of no church, and has never been a believer in the efficacy of prayer or faith to accomplish miracles. But he is deeply touched by what he has witnessed. He can hardly believe yet what he has seen with his own eyes.

There seems to be no religious excitement connected with this restoration. Mrs. Walton says that she was never more calm. She feels that the peace that came to her at the instant she was wholly healed will abide with her. She has not a fear for the future. And she continually reiterates the state ment: "It was simple faith in Jesus that did it-nothing else. His power for healing is the same-today as when he walked upon the shores of Galilee. I am healed without money and without price." Directly after the morning service Mrs. Walton, with several others, received the rite of baptism by im-

Friends in great numbers constantly collected for her, and she has still cancelled stamps on hand to the number of 100,000, nearly boxed in packages of 100 each. SPIRITS RECOGNIZED.

A trip to Marcellus, Mich., and from there to the home of the renowed medium for materialization, James W. Riley. Our party consisted of four, three ladies and myself. We left our quiet little village of Flushing, June 15th, for Durand Junction, where we took a train on the Grand Trunk Railupon her bed. The previous night had been one of extreme road for Marcellus. Arriving there we took the bus for our destination about three and a half miles over a beautiful rolcations I think that I ever saw, where mankind need not fear with Mr. Riley and family, and such a family, all so kindly

I would like to relate a little episode or circums ance (which his make up better than anything.) I saw while there, as Mr. one, and began to read in order to give us a little idea of the kind of communications which came to him on this side of woman called, and husband, friend and attendant came life. It seemed that this particular one came from a lady who resides in the Far West, who told in a distressed manuer the would have assisted her she motioned them back. She says story of her bereavements by death, which was quite affectit seemed to her that she could not hurry fast enough. She ling to read, so much so that Mr. Riley could with difficulty continue, being so completely choked up with sympathy that step, and with the second step a joyful thrill swept over her; the tears rolled down his face freely. Now these things may seem of little note to many, but to me, coming from a perfect stranger as that letter did to Mr. Riley. If he had such genmade the remark that whatever we got through that man we

Soon after partaking of a good supper prepared by our the table. On Wednesday she walked unattended down a kind hostess, we were ushered into the parlor and seated in flight of five steps, without faltering, and yesterday she semi-circular form fronting a door, which opened into a bedroom which is used as a cabinet by Mr. Riley. We were requested to examine the room to see that he had no accomplices or machinery secreted, which we did and soon after Mr. Riley took his seat just inside the door and drew a dark curtain in front of him, still keeping up the conversation with those outside until "like one going to sleep," he gradual!y ceased to converse "audibly," and soon became unconscious science in it, that it is between God and herself. A strange to all earthly surroundings. We began singing and soon we perceived that the curtain was in motion, and shortly after the form of a person appeared "at the opening of the curtain," which Mrs. Riley introduced as Mr. Benton, Mr. Riley's guide, cernible. Color, circulation, strength and vivacity seem fully after which many others came who were recognized by some members of the circle. Among those who came out to the circle (seven or eight feet) were the husband of a lady I brought, who shook hands with her. After this came my foot when it was club-shaped from repeated crampings, and father, Chauncy Crosby, grasping me by the hand and fairly gradually sinking down into the floor at the feet of Mr. Riley. I will here state that my father had a peculiar habit in fixing his front hair by running his fingers up into it and then giving his hand a twist which left his hair much in the shape of a rose. That motion he made when he first appeared and which I well understood, it being to me an excellent test—one I never shall forget. The husband of another of the sisters also appeared, but too weak seemingly to leave the curtain. All dematerialized in plain view. We also received many communications on slates in answer to questions which were nearly all correct. A. CROSBY.

THIRTY-TWO SPIRITS APPEAR.

To the Editor of the LIGHT OF TRUTH. I feel it my duty to say to the many readers of the LIGHT OF TRUTH what wonderful revelations have lately come to me at San Diego, Cal., through the mediumship of Mrs Elsie Reynolds, who is so widely known and loved for her many virtues as a woman and the great work she is doing for the cause of Spiritualism. I have been a believer in the philosophy for many years, but being in an obscure part of the world did not have an opportunity of witnessing the phenomena. Visiting Santa Barbara for my health two weeks and availed myself of the opportunity of attending. After mediums I heard Mrs. Reynolds was to hold a full-form materializing seance, and was advised to attend if "I wished to just have the socks knocked off me." Well, I attended, and I did witness and hear things there which settled me forever in regard to spirit return, especially the grandest phase of all, materialization. The medium requested anyone in the audience to examine the cabinet, simply a dark curtain stretched across a solid corner of the room. She then took her seat outside of the cabinet. I saw three spirit forms come out before the medium entered, one tall woman, a little girl about ten years old, and a miss I should say of fourteen years of age; the latter danced. They all three spoke independent of the medium. The medium was then entranced and taken into the cabinet, when thirty-two forms appeared in quick succession, men, women, and children of all sizes. One woman came out in the room who was at least six feet tall. Two came out the practice of medicine and surgery. It is a fact that at a time, each speaking with friends. I held on to my "socks." But, friends, my old, trembling mother came out and called people suffer and die. The Health's Home is on the side of me by name; I recognized her perfectly, next a brother and then a dear wife. Taking my hand in hers she said: "George as outside the profession." I am not dead, I am waiting for you." Placing her finger upon a ring which I had on my finger she said: "That is the ring you took off my finger after I was dead." This was true. On the next Sunday evening Mrs. Reynolds gave a materializing seauce in the hall. There were over a hundred in at tendance, I should think, and the manifestations were equally as good as those I witnessed in her own room. She intends visiting the World's Far in October. Those who fail to see her will miss a treat, for I do not believe there is her equal ray, and it is interesting to see how each argues toward the in the world. You need have no fear of endorsing her in point of his own belief, or as he would like to have Lincoln your grand paper, for which I now subscribe. Yours for the

SLATE-WRITING AND TESTS.

Concerning a seance for the phenomena of Spiritualism. W. Cooper writes from St. Louis, Mo., that Jules Wallace, ouis Schloss, and Rev. Colby formed the combination that brought forth wonderful results-the former giving tests, the latter slate-writing.

The audience, numbering about three hundred, presented ome forty slates for experimentation. These slates were piled in two stacks on a table facing the audience, and away from the mediums-both being under the glare of the electric light which illuminated the hall. After a musical selection. Mr. Schloss approached the table and laid his hands on the same. In a few minutes the manifestations were finished and handing out the slates, they were filled with messages drawings, etc, which were recognized by the owners of the Then Mr. Wallace gave some of his matchless tests-one being to a young man concerning his control, his affianced in life, and proved a marvelous delineation of clairvoyant insight and spirit description. The production of a photograph to the audience made the test absolute. Another was to tell a young man that he had cut an extract from a morning's paper which extract he had with him. Its production testified to the truth of Mr. Wallace's psychical reading. About twenty such tests were given to the delight and instruction of investigators-the facts speaking for themselves and require no further comment.

The writer also says that Harry Clifton is doing good work n his rooms and at Howard's Hall, and that Spiritualism is making great strides in this largest of Southern cities. And for all that he still meets with people who put the question, What good if true?" He points to our healing mediums as the reply and shuts them up. He closes with a neat commentary, but the facts herein stated are able to stand without them. Such facts need no defense.

Something of Interest.

To the Editor of the LIGHT OF TRUTH.

Will you allow me space in your paper for a brief report of an incident in spirit materialization that has come to my knowledge? Mrs. Mary J. Colburn, through whose mediumship were given the "Inspirational Teachings" that appear from time in your columns, still lives in the mortal, old, blind, and deaf, but a wonderful instrument in the hands of spirits who have been on the immortal side thousands of years. A weekly meeting of three persons, Mrs. Colburn, her sister, Mrs. Spaulding, and myself, commenced nearly five years ago, has been kept up with few interruptions to the present time, at Anoka, Minn. At these meetings I always see, clairvoyantly, the spirits who control Mrs. Colburn, and so distinctly do they present themselves to my vision that to mistake their identity is simply impossible. Saturday, July 29th, I accepted from Mrs. Aspinwall an invitation to her seance for materialization, to be held that evening on the campgrounds, at Merrimac Island. About thirty persons sat in the circle, and when my name was called I stepped to the cabinet, the curtains parted, and there in plain sight of all present stood the mejestic form of a very ancient spirit that I had many times seen by Mrs. Colburn's side. In a whisper, but sufficiently loud and distinct to be plainly heard by all, he sent a message to his medium, calling her by name; and as they gazed at the beautiful form and heard the kind message to his blind medium all felt that they were indeed standing on holy ground. These ancient spirits are exceedingly beautiful. They seem to have reached the perfection of personal comeliness. Will any of the thirty witnesses of this manifestation ever doubt that those who lived on earth thousands of years ago are living still, and taking an active part in the great spiritual movement of to day? I hope not. Truly SOPHRONIA M. LOWELL

· The "Regular" Way.

We clip the following from the Healthy Home, a paper published in the interest of the "regulars," but its editors are proad-minded men who do not propose to spoil a story for relation's sake: "Albert D. Chandler fell from his wagon on the Charles River bridge, Boston, July 7th, injuring his brain and was picked up in this condition by a policeman who pronounced him drunk. Two reputable physicians agreed with this diagnosis and in court the next morning a third physician declared the man to be 'shamming.' The injured man was sentenced to four months' imprisonment and died two days later in prison, where his true condition was discovered too late by the prison physician.

"That three 'regular' physicians recognized by the city of Boston as competent to decide in all cases where precious lives are at stake should have failed to make a correct diagnosis in the above case and brand an innocent sick man as a criminal seems an inexcusable blunder.

"Cases of criminal carelessness on the part of the regulars' have done more to encourage empiricism and increase the list of quacks and medical pretenders than any other one thing. If such a case had been the painful and tragic result of a quack's disgnosis it would have raised a great hue and the fact might have been used as an argument before some legislative committee in favor of passing a bill to regulate through the carelessness and stupidity of physicians many the people and fights quackery and ignorance inside as well

REPORT OF SEANCE.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. QUES .- [M. D] Can we accept an avowed Catholic as one of our number in Spiritualism?

ANS -Can we accept an avowed Protestant, an Infidel, or a Jew may be asked with the same propriety. Spiritualism does not accept or reject a man on what he avows, but simply presents to him as an intelligent being what it has to offer as truth, whether he accepts or not. There is less danger to the cause in accepting than rejecting a man, whatever his principles or belief, for nine out of ten are more affected by truth than to leave them in ignorance, and will hold to truth, which is equal to an exchange for former beliefs. Besides that, there is no question of acceptance by Spiritualists involved. The question is, does he accept your philosophy or facts? If so, he becomes a Spiritualist, simply. If not, he is the loser, not we. If you mean, shall we admit him into our societies, it becomes a matter for the society, to which he applies, to decide. He can do no more, at most, than to oppose in worldly matters. He will only be on par with a goodly number of avowed Spiritualists. He can not stop the phenomena or the cause from advancing. Mediums are too fond of harmonious conditions to admit uncongenial influences to their circles, and are becoming too sensitive and intuitive all around to be deceived any more by such beyond one seance. Thus it will not retard the phenomena. And to arrest the cause he must unconvert existing Spiritualists. That you know to be as impossible as to stop the movement of the earth. Spiritualists do not believe, they know, and no one can deny what he knows to be true-at least not in his own heart. So, what objections can there be to accepting any body who is sane or wise enough to know a fact when he sees it? Intelligent Catholics are more easily converted to Spiritualism than hard-headed Materialists, for they already believe in spirit-communion, and, therefore, require no test condition to enlighten them further. The only objection a "good' Catholic can make to Spiritualism is that it is the work of the devil, and such keep shy of it, as they would of the horned gentleman, were he a real character. The "avowed" Catholic, who risks to face this devil's work is not true to his faith. He is not a Catholic in reality, but a dissenter or an Infidelmost probably a Materialist. And once a Materialist, farewell to Catholicism. But a Materialist of this order is a hard nut to crack, and would better be left alone. Such an "avowed" Catholic you don't want to accept. They don't want to know, and couldn't know if they tried. To become any kind of a Spiritualist there must be some spirituality at the foundation to build on.

QUES -[J. J.W.] Will the lady I now intend to marry make me a suitable wife? Will we be happy together, or shall we remain single?

ANS -This is a personal question, and one for a prophetess or psychometrist to answer. Those gifted with prophecy often intuitively divine or see clairvoyantly the effect of certain causes ahead, though few can delineate them accurately enough to be relied on. Either their own prejudices or fancies pervert these depictions, or the influence of the questioner affects them detrimentally. Especially is the latter the case when selfish motives induce one to seek a fortune teller, so-called, for the purpose of finding out something concerning the future. Selfishness beclouds the medium's intuitions to the extent that the questioner is speculative. Love needs no fortune teller, for every man's intuitions become clear in comparison to his purity of motive in the undertaking, and he will be rightly led by inclination or impression. Follow your inclination especially in all things. This is the guidance of the moral law (as described in last issue of message department), which is gaining the upper hand in mundane affairs gradually, and which will finally rule in public as well as in private affairs. If you are in doubt about a thing it is always well to "sleep over it." If disinclined to an unmistakable degree, abstain from whatever boy. To papa and mamma and sister NellicDenver, Colo. intention was present. The latter is especially to be recom mended when about to travel. Many have avoided accidents by following out their inclinations to remain at home. This is individual prophecy-clear in comparison to love in the heart-i. e., freedom from selfishness or hatred. Selfishness is often punished by mistakes or blunders. This is as it should be; for it aids the unfortunate one to get rid of it. As experience makes wise, trials make sympathetic; and on the latter is based the spirituality needed for one's ascent to higher conditions. Light dawns comparatively; and he who walks in the light of Spiritualism needs no advice from either mortals or spirits concerning himself. He knows in-

QUES .- [Reader] Why are the most devoted Spiritualists the least prosperous in worldly affairs?

ANS -Because they are the most sensitive and the most conscientious. Their sensitiveness makes them devoted to Spiritualism because it furnishes them with the magnetic stimulant that all sensitives need to brace them up near right as I knew how. I know that I re made mistakes against the rawness of material and unspiritual human influences that predominate in cities where a struggle for existing is the governing idea. Being more in accord with the principles of the cause than those are who only regard Spiritualism as a secondary consideration in their life's affairs, such devotees, too, are naturally more conscientious than their more worldly minded brethren, and can not cope with the outside world in the little trickeries, misrepresentations, chicaneries, assumptions, tyrannies, rivalries, etc., necessary to do business, and gain the applause of the human world accordingly. Few can become wealthy in a strictly legitimate business way to-day, or by giving an equivalent for value received. And hard work alone will not compensate itself when all are trying to outwit the other through a use of the faculties that should be developed for higher purposesa future existence. The devoted Spiritualist realizes this, either intuitively or by virtue of his common reason, and can not demean himself to join in the race after wealth. He feels that a perversion of these faculties for unspiritual purposes will be a detriment to him in the hereafter-eternityand thus rather suffer a little here and reap a golden harvest in the life to come. For, if you have nothing to offer in the form of sympathy, strength, or spiritual advice, as a spiritual being to those who need it, you can get nothing in return when needy yourself. Sympathy develops sympathy-that is, by being helpful to others, honest in your representation of things, just in your dealings with all men, and consciention to my loved ones and to my dear lboy. I want him tious generally. Strength is gained by honest toil, and to know that his mother is ever near. I wish also to soul means will to roam about and not be earthbound and Quincy, Mass.

Spirit Message Department chained to one spot by material ties—a prisoner without hope often, because the opportunities that were are passed, and no new ones presenting themselves in the new sphere, narrowed down by your own life impetus. Spiritual advice can not be given except one has had the experience that mediums and Spiritualists are gaining by their adherence to the cause. Should you lack the will to move from your prison spot, and a spirit bappens to call on you for advice and you are able to give it, that spirit, by the law of reciprocity involuntarily gives you of his will, and thereby loosens the chains that bind you to the amount received in exchange for the ad vice. This you can apply all around. But if you have nei ther developed sympathy, will-power, nor spirituality in earth life-the opportunity of your future-you are indeed poor in spirit, and will be unhappy. In that state you are deprived of mental converse with other spirits. Having lived for self that it has been heard at all, and you will feel like one on the desert, far away from everything except the barren sandsa condition analogous to the barren life you have made your self. So the Spiritualist who is true to the cause, realizing all this, can not give up his promises of future happiness for what can be but short lived happiness-worldly pros-

works in some hands and not in others? ANS .- The fact that it will only operate in some hands proves it to be a phase of mediumship, and places the "divining rod" per se in the category of superstitions. But many who are sensitive to locating water or metallic ore, are assisted by another medium in the form of a rod, shaped to suit their fancy, or made from a material that accords with their own physical nature-principally the state of their blood. Some mediums require an object simply to concentrate their minds on, and which helps the inspiration, or sharpens their intuitive and psychometric faculties for the time being. A rod in the hands of a psychometrist or sensitive is such an object. Water and minerals could be sensed without the use of a rod if mediums were to search for them barefooted. But in your age the hands have become the main feelers, and men prefer to touch the earth with a stick than to stoop down to do so with their hands. Thus the divining rod may be regarded life. as a civilized addendum to natural sensitiveness, as the spyglass is an aid to physical sight. Witchhazel and other woods of this nature have good properties for conveying the needed sensations to the medium, and thus locate the thing sought after. Many people carry a walking cane for the reason that it feels good. It is on the same principle. It guides and aids magnetically, because it touches the earth and brings the bearer into harmony with the earth, which is otherwise prevented by the wearing of shoes. Children, too, love to run barefooted for the same reason. All sensitives should carry a cane or an umbrella as a substitute for that reason alone. It is both healthful and recuperative.

QUES .- [M. R., Decatur, Tex] How can we get rid o evil controls—such as the untruthful or frivolous? ANS -It depends on the nature of the medium who has these controls or the circle that attracts them. If the control is untruthful there is deception somewhere around, whether in the house, the circle, or hidden within the recesses of the medium's soul. The head of the house may be a speculator or an executor of wills, and not doing exactly right, and having the strongest will or attracting power, controls the house magnetically. This, of course, gives his spirits' the upper hand; and a deceptive life is an untruthful one which attracts like spirits. One of the circle may be a deceiver, either in courtship or business, and spoils conditions accordingly. Or one of the mediums may be unconsciously deceitful—not knowing self—and thus has similar controls All such little possibilities must be taken into consideration when endeavoring to find the cause for certain effects. "Seek and thou shalt find."

Immortality is a fact-not a mere poetic fancy, as I some times thought it might be when reflecting seriously over some of my writings. Poets are all secret, or, if applicable, might say unconscious believers in a future life. That is they would like to have it so. Their wish being father to the thought, they sing it to their muse, and revel in fanciful dreams that a higher life is in waiting, or that they can commune with the spiritual arisen ones of earth. Ob, how near the truth and not know it 'We either know too much, or not enough for our interior good, and in the end regret both Oh, ye happy Spiritualists, who have the knowledge, and yet claim to know so little. Aye, the world honors those who believe in a future life more than it does those who know of it. What an an anomaly! What a parody on consistency! But of seeing your loved ones' deprived of travelling, and deprived it is human nature first to crucify then to idolize. Spiritualism will come in for a share of the latter in time, or when most of only, every thought sent out returns unladen with comfort, or the present workers will be enjoying the fruits of their labor. Their unrequited work gives them supremacy to begin withthis being love, the mightiest of acquired personal attributes These being first in the cause they are ever foremost in the truths pertaining to it. This is like being of the elite of earth life. Furthermore, they enjoy the happiness which is theirs, for the praises sung in their behalf by their followers ust as religious worshippers do those who inaugurated their respective sects or movements. But Spiritualists will not indulge in much personalities. Their gratitude will be in the form of intellectual encomiums showered upon the entire generations which preceded them, and this will be all the reward the arisen ones can wish for. It is all the happiness we need. Serve mankind and your heaven is assured. And none can serve in a higher capacity than to belong to the pioneer ranks of such a cause.

In the LIGHT OF TRUTH of July 15th is a message from Isaac Markley which seems to be directed to me, yet neither name is correct, and the place where the spirit passed out is not given. So I have nothing to guide me, but I hope he will earth which were constituted originally of the finer radiations come again and gave the name and place of residence, or of the earth itself, segregated by chemical affinity into more some sure landmark so I shall know it is for me. The answer to my question was a pleasant surprise to me, as it seems to read my own phases of mediumship very closely, that from their lightness gravitated farther from the earth although I did not mention anything of myself. The diamond and formed still more beautiful realms—that there are gradaspark mentioned has long been familiar to me; sometimes a flash-always the herald of some change-either mental or physical; also clairvoyant glimpses and voices or impressions, but it seems to get no clearer. Two Pictures.

CARRIE P. S TWING I sat in the gathering shadows And gazed to the west away, Where the hand of an unseen artist Was painting at close of day, A strange and wonderful picture
That filled my soul with awe,
And made me dream of the city No mortal ever saw.

Paint me, oh, wonderful artist," I cried as the shadows came, And filled with marvelous glory The western hills atlame "Paint me the face of an angel," And, lo, before my eyes Was the face of my sainted mother, Who dwells in Paradise.

Paint me the face of a sinner." A darker shadow crept Down the hill, and I thought in the twilight The unseen artist wept When, lo, from the magical pencil A face in a moment had grown. The sad, white face of a sinner, And I knew it for my own.

And then the face of my mother Looked sad as I saw it once more And I wondered if she had been looking Right down through the open door Of my heart, to the darkness that sin And its follies had cast O'er a heart that was guiltless in childhood, But polluted and dark toward the last.

But a smile on the face of my mother Cast all those sad faucies away, And a voice I had heard in my childhood Came back at the close of that day, And it said, "If you dream of atonement By doing some grand, mighty deed, Just take a sinner to cherish To cleanse and to purify too; Think not of the sins of your neighbor, But remember that sinner is you."

Good Words from a Good Friend.

To the Editor of the LIGHT OF TRUTH.)

It has been a long time since I have communicated to you -scarcely since you succeeded the Better Way, but it is not through indifference, I assure you. Every channel of enlightenment and love for my fellows is dear to me, and my languishing soul yearns to assist such workers. But for a time I have, through mental and physical inability, been enforced to lay aside my beloved pen, to sit in silence and cheer "ahead" those who are doing valiant work for humanity. God bless them, one and all, in any capacity in which they may be individually fitted to labor !

I hope ere long to be numbered among them. But it is a comforting thought that even though hand and tongue must temporarily, yes, sometimes permanently, suspend needed and beloved operations, the "soul goes marching on." That such times of seeming trial and apparent inactivity are possibly the best and surest means of unfolding the virtues of the spirit that all the time we, the immortal part, are gaining unspeakable strength, wisdom, and loveliness. It is not always the environments that chain the spirit, it is oftener lack of desire to grow, and growth can only come of effort-of continued, earnest effort. Others may assist and encourage us from both sides, but we must do the work. I used to be averse to the idea of "spiritual guides," but I am fast learning that I have all I can do to follow patiently and carefully their advice for my good and the united good of all concerned. Not that I assume a dormant mood or sit idly by and let my spirit friends do my planning for me. Oh, no! But when I am lovingly told that I am on the wrong track, or that by a different course I might attain higher spiritual good and also impart it to others, I try to subserviate my own feebler intuitions to their greater wisdom and thus make faster progress on the road of eternal advancement. So, dear brothers and sisters, if I am silent I still bear you all in my mind and can picture no happier future or higher joy than move obstables from the paths of others, to shed more light along the way of earth life. May sweet influences pervade all your homes and accelerate your faithful efforts is the Your sister, ELLA LUCY MEBRIAM.

Probably over half of the people of an average community could become able to see by means of the finer grades of light that reveals this grander interior universe, if they would perseveringly, and under proper helps, cultivate the faculty. I am informed that there are spiritual realms near the ethereal masses of matter in the shape of refined landscapes, and that these in their turn sent off still finer emanations, tions of spirit spheres suited to the ever-advancing character of spiritual and angelic life, some of which have their palaces and homes made of materials more exquisite than diamonds, while the beings resident there are described as being more radiant than the sun, and possessing a beauty, wisdom, and power beyond all mortal conception.

These celestial worlds, the homes of angelic and archangelic life, are so indescribably resplendent that the highest forms of what we usually call material worlds seem but the blackress of darkness in comparison. Their inhabitants were once dwellers on our own or some other planet. As it is the destiny of man to progress, through ever-advancing grades of spiritual life, passing to higher and still higher worlds, shall human or even angelic conception ever be able to grasp the wonders of those realms to which he must finally attain? These are extracts from Dr. E. D. Babditt's work on "Religion." See book-list, seventh page.

JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL.

"He's true to God who's true to man; wherever wrong is done, To the humblest and the weakest, 'neath the all-beholding sun, That wrong is also done to us; and they are slaves most base Whose love of right is for themselves, and not for all their race."

THE HOPE OF ORGANIZATION.

There never was a more propitious time or season to organize than now. All things portend favorable results if our people will but act. Not with preamble and resolutions, opinions and arguments, as to the modes or possibilities of organization, but with delegates to the convention which is to be held at Chicago on September 27th, 28th, and 29th next. Arrangements for moderate prices for rooms and board have been effectuated, and those who are delegated by corporate societies to attend will notify the corresponding secretary, R A. Dimmick, care of H. Steinberg, 506 Twelfth Street, Washington, D. C. Societies that have not yet appointed a delegate are importuned to do so, remembering that those having less than fifty members send one delegate, and those having more send for each fractional part of this number an additional delegate. This will make a large convention and a notable one if the societies choose rightly. Talent and oratory are not so much needed as a practicability in knowing how to organize a body of people on a sound or permanent basis-on business principles rather than on high-sounding moral tenets. The moral lies in the unification. If this is accomplished it stands as a moral before the world. The United States Constitution may serve as a basis and guide. It has no God in it, yet stands as a rock. Why not follow in Great things have sprung from minute causes, while too many words often lead to nothing. Let this be remembered in the preface. The fewer the tenets the more brilliant they will shine forth. Spiritualism has a few bright facts that can not be refuted or questioned. They are, that man is immortal; that spirit communion is possible; and that future happiness depends on a moral or spiritual life in the body. These three points may be defined at the will and pleasure of the convention; or a prize offered for the whole or each for the best and briefest essay thereon, limiting them if necessary to so many words. The latter may prevent delay in their formulation and facilitate the business or practical part of the organization. The prize need not consist in money value, or to any extent further than to pay for an individual's time, but in having the winner's name printed with his or her essay in the constitution or minutes of this notable convention. It should be an honor worth striving for, and who knows but that another Nellie Colburn Maynard may not spring from an obscure corner unlooked for, and surprise the world with an emancipation proclamation that shall not only free slaves from physical bondage, but from mental bondage and superstition, and lead to the highest spiritual plane ever attained by mankind. Let the good work of organization be attempted, and we may strike higher this time than aimed for.

CONVENTION NOTES.

Dr. Hanseman, one of the selected delegates from Washington, D. C., intends to take to Chicago to the convention his very important collection of spirit communications and photographs, which is probably the largest and most interesting of any in the world. The doctor may well be proud of his historical collection, which is full of interest to Sp ritual ists as well as investigators.

California will send representatives to the convention.

The first society to select delegates in conformity to the call was the First Society of Louisville, Ky.

A considerable interest is manifested in the matter of a selection of president of the convention, and several prominent names have been mentioned in this connection.

The Chicago societies are taking hold of matters in earnest, and are to select committees on entertainment, decoration, etc., and will in all ways do what is possible for the comfort of delegates and their friends.

Arrangements have been made for the accommodation of delegates at the Hotel Brown, which is in close proximity to convention hall, and excellent rooms may be had at $1 per

The hall is an excellent location and easily accessible from all point of the city and the World's Fair grounds.

Reports and private letters from the various camp meetings now in session indicate a steady increase of investigators in the claims of Spiritualism. Thousands are being drawn into the blessed reality of everlasting life and development. Nearly every barrier that has blocked the path of the timid explorer for the last four decades has been broken down, and now they come with courage to visit our mediums and learn the way to a re-union here on earth with their departed loved ones. To this great truth the people are slowly awakening. The prime affirmation of Spiritualism in its scientific attitude has been that energy can be exerted by an act of will, and that will may be the impetus of the human spirit embodied or disembodied. Matter and force can not be made to account for consciousness. This is what Prof. James, of Harvard University, means when he says that "the most urgent intellectual need is that science be built up again in a form in which the facts of Spiritualism shall have a place." He and other searchers have seen matter impelled to perform acts involving intelligence and consciousness without physical contact. There is no known law of physics by which it can be explained. But instead of being at the end of physics a boundless field of exploration is opened up. The human principle survives death, and is enabled by the dynamical re- on an old-fashined kitchen floor you may determine that lations of matter and force to prove its survival, therefore there is something amiss, something lacking in the laws of accurate and uniling. the physical properties of matter and force.

THE EXTRA CONGRESS AND THE PEOPLE.

The president's message is a compact document and as honest as his lines will permit him to occupy. But the tap root of the upas tree has not been touched and will not be by any action that Congress may take. The cause of prosperity is labor, and yet labor asks the privilege of squeezing the wine press while silluence and greed drink the draught in golden goblets. Just after dinner the Bridgewater band gave another concert at the auditorium. Every selection was encored and several were redemanded.

The afternoon exercises opened with a solo by Professor Maynard, "I stood on the Bridge at Midnight." F. A. Wiggin, the speaker, made the invocation and Pro-essor Maynard sang "The Peaceful Shore." Mr. Wiggin prefaced his addresss by saying many enter-tained doubts atout religion. Any one who kills an honest doubt kills his lest friend. Doubt is the savior of the world, for it leads to study and investigation. Knowledge is power, but ignorance i sin. Science has almost wedded the last link of the grea chain that unites the two worlds, the seen and the unseen. The speaker gave an extended description of the power of lairvoyance. He said when a person possess ing a power of (airvoyance gazes upon any one he can tell about his spiritual and mental condition with unfailing accuracy. It amura of dark blue is noticed about his head it indicates that e is almost devoid of the power of thought. Haslett Park Camp.

Monday, July 31st, was a perfect day at Haslet Park, and was a day of almost perfect rest, as the only session was a short one in the morning for the organization of the ly-

Tuesday morning came the physical culture class of the lyceum, followed by a conference.

In the afternoon Mrs. A. L. Robinson gave a very interesting talk at the request of the audience, some of her own experiences as a medium, followed by a large number of tests from Alice, every one being recognized. All went home feeling satisfied with the afternoon.

Wednesday forenoon was devoted to the Reading Circle, which was well attended and enjoyed by all.

In the afternoon Mrs. Robinson closed her engagement, and a large audience (for a week day) greeted her. "Alice," her control, gave an account of her life while on earth, and a little that had come to her since she left our sphere. The talk was very interesting, as Alice, while in life, was a Catholic nun, belonging to the Gray Sisters in Brussels, Belgium. She told her sad story in a way that made one feel deeply the gross injustice practiced in the Catholic Church; also our wn danger from that same injustice. Mrs. Robinson closed her talk with the usual tests, which were exceedingly fice.

Friday at 10 o'clock the lyceum held their first regular session, and was greatly enjoyed by young and old. The afternoon session was opened by a solo by Mrs. Nellie Roe, entitled "When the Voyage Is Over." Mrs. A. E. Sheets read a poem and gave the invocation previous to her lecture apon the "Spiritual Growth and Development of Man." Saturday afternoon a large audience gathered to hear the Hon. L. V. Moulton, of Grand Rapids, speak upon "The Legal Status of Spiritualism." He said that people had an idea that the legislative department of our government made all the laws; but in fact it makes only a small part of them. The great mass of the common laws, as they are called, are unwritten or become laws through decision of the courts. And the laws thus made are just as binding as any that are made in Washington. New questions are constantly coming up that require new laws, and a decision of the court will be obtained establishing the laws one way or the other, long before any statute is passed. In law, as in other walks of life, certain terms and phrases have a certain meaning, and these meanings are given in law dictionaries. If we turn to a law dictionary we find there that "Spiritualism" and "mediumship" are defined as "a system of false pretenses." But let me say that Spiritualism in the courts has never been proven on a quare issue, one way or the other. There has been many cases involving questions of Spiritualism; but the decisions have been so diverse that as yet there is no fixed law. We trust that the time will soon come when Spiritualism will be given its true and honest place, and a medium will not be table to arrest upon the charge of vagrancy, simply for being

Mr. Moulton closed his able address by an earnest appeal to Spiritualists everywhere to stand for their rights, and the right in every spot and place, and, by united action at the poils, make themselves the power for good. They should be. If we would purify society we must purify ourselves first and our neighbors next.

-The Spiritualists of Rawtenstall, England, have built themselves an iron church, seating about three hundred auditors. They are surely iron clad against opposition.

-Prof. J. Clegg Wright paid our office a visit this week-He was on his way from Chesterfield to Queen City Park, and says that at the former place he had the larg at audiences of the season May he continue thus.

-Lois Waisbrooker has taken editorial charge of Foundation Principles, a monthly journal devoted to motherhood and sex revolution, and other reforms. It is a ready printed eight page journal; costs fifty cents a year, and issued at Topeka, Kan.

-"Modern Spiritualism," by Samuel H. Terry, given in two parts-its object and its religion-is a neat little brochure, which retails at five cents at Colby and Rich, Boston, Mass. It is a good thing to pass to a neighbor who is manifesting some interest in the philosophy of Spiritualism. Send for a copy.

-The Photographic Adversaria, No. 3, published by J. B. Chamberlain, 516 Eleventh Street, Washington, D. C., has an interesting article on spirit photography by Dr. Theo. Hansmann, accompanied by a photograph illustrating his essay. The doctor has had a good deal of experience in this department, and can speak by the book.

-Several of our correspondents write to ascertain why the landlords of the various Spiritualist camp-meetings do not advertise their hotelries in the Banner of Light-just as Summer hotels all over the country are advertised in the daily and weekly press during the heated term. We do not know. It is one of the incongruities of human nature which we are at a loss to account for. - Banner of Light.

-W.H.Bach has completed his camp meeting work and will remain in the Northwest until October 1st. He goes to Denver, Colo., for October and November; Aberdeen, S. D., for December, and east after January 1st. He can be engaged for short engagements at points in Minnesota, Wisconsin, and northern Illinois for the next six weeks. Those wishing his services should address at once, W. H. Bach, 57 Englehart Street, St. Paul, Minn.

-The Globe Democrat of St. Louis, Mo., of Sunday, the 6th inst., contains about four columns of interesting reading matter on Spiritualism, among it several extracts from the LIGHT OF TRUTH, an original correspondence from Lily Dale camp, the reports of a number of seances with Jules Wallace and Prof. Schloss. Progressive papers generally are taking up Spiritualism as a matter of fact worth recording. Spiritualists should note this and direct their patronage accordingly.

-The Lake George Camp Association of Caldwell, N. Y. has issued a neat little pamphlet containing its constitution and by-laws, as well as a map of the grounds as laid out in The officers of this association are Henry J. Newton, of New York City, president; James D. Wnite, of Albany, N. Y. vice-president; S. H. Smitn, of Lake George, N. Y, secretary E. L. Seelye, of Lake George, treasurer. This camp, to our mental view will, in a few years, be one of the most popular in our cause.

-A correspondent of Indianapolis, Ind., writes: 'Mrs Mary Davis, whose wonderful mediumistic powers have been described in the columns of your widely read journal, is lying at death's door at the home of her daughter and grand daughter, Mrs. L. L. Jackson and Mrs. L. Nicolai, Jackson Place, Irvington. This venerable lady at the advanced age of eighty four retains her faculties in a marked degree. many friends of dear old 'grandma' Davis, as she is familiarly called will anxiously await for good tidings from this sick

-Charles Wilhelm, of 156 Calhoun Street, this city, writes "Noting card of Mrs. J. Donovan of 525 McMillan Street, Walnut Hills, in LIGHT OF TRUIH, and never having had the pleasure of a sitting with aforesaid lady, determined to investigate her. I first examined everything in the room, leaving no possible room for doubt. Beside everything took place in broad daylight. The medium, after going into a trance, gave me several remarkable and convincing tests. I also received several communications of independent slate-writing. One from my son and another from one of our former most celebrated physicians who was himself a strong Spiritualist while in earth life. The length of the communications prevents them from being printed at present, but Spiritualis's desiring to see them may do so by calling on me.'

-The Pacific Coast Spiritualist will be a new organ devoted to the interest of Spiritualism in a short while. It is to be a weekly paper and will be issued in connection with the Carrier Dove of San Francisco. We will be pleased to see another spiritualistic exchange on our table. The cause could well support half a dozen more papers if its advocates, who advertise would be as generous towards their own press as they are towards the secular press, or did as the Church people do-take the paper whether they read it or not. "No time to read" is the excuse of many; but when it comes to going to a seance, time is found enough to read half a dozen papers. Besides that, people who have no time to read, must and could well afford to take two subscrip tions, or more for missionary purposes. Wake up, Spiritualists, the day will come when you will wish you had devoted a little more time to reading and reflecting instead of hiding and shirking your duty as chosen ones to whom the light was given for more purposes than one.

-The Philosophical Society celebrated its first anniversary on last Sunday. The friends of the society were most generons in their contribution for decorating purposes, for which hearty thanks are given. A spledidid attendance at each society in that line. The society desires to return thanks for the highly appreciated music furnished by the following: Prof. Hollneck, Emile Seiler, Geo. Schroer, John Schroer, Ed. tral Avenue, on next Saturday evening for the benefit of the society. All come and enjoy a feast of good things from her interesting little Fire Fly.—H. Brengelman, Per. LOCALS AND PERSONALS.

Our message department contains something of special interest to sensitives this week. It will profit all to read it.

Prof. W. F. Peck will speak at Like George Camp meet.

Though not an advocate of the re-incarnation theory, and also a believer in the continuance of all alike, I see no way to dispense of flies unless there be a special dispensation for them, pose of flies unless there be a special dispensation for them, by which they will be re-incarnated, for one would loth to meet them in the spirit world. Turning to the left from the gate we find the postoffice, and to that indefatigable worker, Mrs. Effic Josselyn, of Grand Rapids, do we apply for our mail, she being also the corresponding secretary of the association. tiation. Pursuing our way up the plaisance we find a beautiful octagonal tent, and some distance beyond we reach the glory of Haslett Park, its grand auditorium. The auditorium seats a thousand people, and is oblong in shape. It is roofed, and the large speakers stand is walled on three sides, with antercome on each side, and a fine piano. It is decorated this year with great taste; bunting, evergreen, and horsetails being especially prominent. The great space occupied by the audience is supplied with movable chairs, and has no walls on the three sides, though we are well sheltered by the lofty roof, and by the awnings that can be let down in cold or rainy weather. Facing the audience, on the left of the speakers' stand, is an oil painting, life size, of a lovely female spirit, whose beautiful uplifted arms and joyous face express her delight at meeting those she loves.

The whole park is shaded by noble trees, and a well one

Of course it will not be possible to speak of many workers in a great camp like this. One who is always in the place which he so nobly fills is the well known G. W. Brooks. Dr. Edson, of Lausing, the general manager, is here and there and everywhere, and in every emergency the first in-quiry is, "where is Dr. Edson?"

During my week here the principal speakers are L. V. Moulton, Lyman C. Howe, Silas W. E. imunds, Mrs Lillie. Mr. Moulton's lecture was on the "Legal Status of our Mediums," and elicited enthusiastic commendation.

Lyman C. Howe spoke under the influence of his most exalted guides Sunday, his subject being "Prophecy." His deep, clear, exhaustive analysis of the ways in which wise spirits see the remote past and future made me feel that its tening to him was one of the marked events of my life. His improvised poem at the close was a gem in diction, meter, and spiritual thought; and I wished for the pen of an angel to record it before it should fade into empty air. This de-devoted worker, this medium of the loftiest spirits! With what pain do we note some failure in physical strength. Alas! what shall we do when we may no longer be led up spiritual heights by his spiritual personality? May the day be far distant when Lyman C. Howe will no longer speak from the spiritual rostrum! Let us embrace every opportunity of bringing his wisdom and his angelic cast of thought before our people.

Monday brought Mrs. Lillie fresh from her work in Lake
Pleasant. We saw her a few weeks ago in Minneapolis, and they will give her a warm greeting there again next month. She is looking unusually bright and well, and we expect a rare treat August 11th, when she and Mr. Howe will conduct the services of Memorial Day.

Haslett Park has one feature in its conference meetings that I have not seen in any other camp. About twice a week they have what they call a reading. A reader is appointed who selects some book or article from which he reads until some one in the audience feels moved to say something in regard to what is read. Lively and thoughtful discussions is awakened, and it is an admirable method to bring out variety in the subjects discussed. Last Saturday a lady read from Emerson's essay on "Virtue;" and to day some extracts that I read them from C. T. Stockwell's "Exhibition of Immorality" gave rise to very animated debate.

Last evening we thought we would have a little fun, and o we had a spelling-bee, with Mrs. Lillie and Mr. Howe to lead the sides, with me to be "school-ma'am." Some brilliant ights went down on very easy words, and the one that outspelled everybody, and quietly stood her ground under the was Mrs. McClintock, of Lainsburg, Mich.

Cassadaga Notes.

I am indeed very sorry that so much of the highly interesting proceedings of the present camp has been lost to the columns of your exhibent paper. But it has been no fault of mine, or perhaps of any one class.

I would be glad to go back and recapitulate some of the meet important transactions, but went of time forbids. The past week has been one of marked interest.

the platform we have had some of the brightest talent in the spiritual ranks, and at the many circles and private seances the phenomena has been unusually satisfactory.

On Sunday, August sch, Willard J Hall delivered a telling discourse upon "God-the Constitution and the National Re-form A-sociation," He "struck right from the shoulder," without 'ear or favor and made an impression pro and con which will not be easily effaced. Scripture was readily quoted, and the miquitous and absurd teachings of the past as well as the present was unveiled. Several Christians (*) left the auditorium, feeling that their pet dogmas had been outraged. Others applanded Mr. Hull vehemently and at the close of the discourse a lady in the audience made a motion that Mr. Hull should be requested to have his lecture published in pamphlet form and scattered breadcast through the The motion was carried, and measures have since been taken to perfect the plan. Mr. B. B. Hill, of Philadelphia, has offered to donate the plates for stereotyping, another has donated the type for setting it, another the mechanical work of setting it, and money to pay for the ink, paper, and hinding has been donated sufficient for 10,000 copies.

Mrs. Cora L V. Richmond gave a very pacific discourse in the afternoon, which was well received. Her subject was, "God in the Constitution-what is its physical import and what will be the sequence of the present agitation.

Tuesday p. m. Rev. W. W. Hicks gave a very elequent discourse upon "The Religion of Spiritualism."

Tuesday p. m. Willard J. Hull closed his engagement here by giving a very forcible discourse upon "Social Economics." The audience was deeply moved, and at the conclusion he seldom had so powerful a discourse or one which was more favorably received. The love of the old friends of Mr. Hull has grown stronger than ever during his present sojourn here, and he has made many new friends and admirers, and as he goes from here to other fields of usefulness he bears the best wishes and kindest thoughts of all.

Wednesday was Grand Army Day. Hon. A. B. French was the orator. We have extensive notes from his truly eloquent and valuable lecture which may appear at some future date.

Thursday morning Hudson Tuttle and Emma Rcod, Tuttle arrived via the train from the North. The Northwestern Orchestrs, the teachers and children of the Lyceum, bearing play banners, and a large delegation of friends met them at the train and conducted them to the grounds. None are more esteemed or more worthy of esteem than that worthy pair who have traveled hand in hand in a long and toilsome march up the hillside of truth and justice. They have not become weary or discouraged, but, as they near the summit, seem brighter and stronger in spirit. We always feel a strength in their presence and hope they may be spared to us for many Their teachings have additional weight for the reason that their example corresponds with their highest teach-

Thursday morning, August 10th, a very interesting conference was held in the auditorium. The subject under discussion war, "Organization." The conterence was opened by the Hon. R. S. McCormick, of Franklin, Pa. He took strong grounds in favor of an organization for purposes similar to those governing the liberal church. Toleration was the point emphasized in his address. This principle, he thought, would be fostered by means of a mild organization. Prof. Alvin K. Pease was the second speaker. He urged a basis of fellowship as the best means of promoting the interests of Spiritualism. He read an extract from the Banner of Light, written by a correspondent from Hartford, Conn., favoring a strong central organization, which was received with applause. The third speaker was Wm. Freetz, of Columbus, Pa., who opposed organization on general principles. He felt that Spiritualism was working its way into all the Churches and destroying their very foundation stones, therefore it was not necessary to organize in order to accomplish the work that Spiritualism has to do Prof. H. D. Barrett, of Lily Dale, N. Y., was the next speaker, who stated that he was first, last, and always in favor of a strong organization. Spiritualism could not be organized. but Spiritualists could be and should be. He favored first organ zation for business purposes only, but it should be entirely without a creed. Second, organization for the protection of speakers and mediums. Third, organization in order to enable Spiritualists to be charitable towards their own faith & Christians are to their Churches. He gave instances where life long Spiritualists, who were very wealthy, had passed to spirit life without bequeathing one penny to further the work of Spiritualism. This, he thought, would have been obviated had there been s strong central organization, like the A. U. A. of the Unitarians to receive their donations. The next speaker on the subject was Geo. P. Colby, of Florida, who thought there should be a statement of faith around the basis of an organization that would soon make Spiritual-ism as much respected by the world as any other religious denomination is to day. He was followed by Mrs. E. J. Huff, of Lily Dale, who vigorously opposed Mr. Colby's ideas, char acterizing them as a form of creedalism and Spiritualism does not need any creed whatever. The next speaker was M. V. Miller, of New Lyme, O, who said he believed in some form of organization, but did not know what form of organization could be made effective and to which he would be willing to subscribe. Mrs. M. E. Cadwallader, of Philadelphia, followed Mr. Miller. She urged organization for business purposes only, leaving each individual free to work for the cause as his conscience dictated. This speaker referred to the fact that we always spoke of the Christian Church as a whole and never of the individual sects comprising it. This was due to the powerful organization around which the Christian Church is centralized. Dr. J. M. Temple, of San Francisco, favored organization for the purpose of protecting the mediums only Frank Walker, of Hamburg, N. Y., chairman of the commit-tee on organization, appointed at this camp last year, reported a resolution and preamble adopted at a previous meeting, and spoke a few earnest words in favor of taking immediate steps towards a permanent organization of some kind, either in the form proposed by our brethren in Washington, D. C., or some other to be formulated here. B. B Hill, of Philadelphia, said that his views were embraced in the remarks of Prof. Barrett. He said further that he was in favor of organizing for the protection of mediums and to further the general interest of Spiritualism with perfect individual liberty, the organization to be unincumbered by creeds. Dr. A. James, of Tennessee, iterated the remarks of Mr. Hill and urged immediate action. Rev. Hicks opposed a national organization, but favored local organization and the combination of local organizations into State associations. He urged the formation of family circles as they were the foundation of all true spiritual unfoldment. Dr. H.cks quoted from writings of an ancient spirit whose wisdom was most profound to all who listened to the wonderful sentences given by the speaker Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond closed the conference with a few words from her guide Saturday morning, August 12th.

In the afternoon Hudson Tuttle and Emma Rood Tuttle occupied the lecture hour and were warmly greeted by their many friends. Mr. Tuttle spoke upon "Psychic Laws." It was a highly valuable discourse, but too lengthy to fully represent by anything less than the entirety. Mrs. Tuttle gave a discourse upon the subject, "What work waits our doing?" which was as follows: "I expect to pass through this world but once. Any good thing, therefore, that I can do, or any kindness that I can show to any fellow human being let me do it now. Let me not defer nor neglect, for I shall not pass this way again.

"How fast the days fly over us, and are counted with the yesterdays. We have scarce looked in our mirrors at our callow young faces before we looked again and see wrinkles where were Spring roses on our cheeks, and snow-frosted hair where was golden, brown, roan. We travel on a rapid transit-a little while and we shall be gone where we can not benefit this world as easily as we can while we are a part of it. Goethe says: 'Uselers lives are as any early death,' and how many slaves to conventionality and ignorance are utterly wasting lives which might tell on the advancement of humanity if rightly used.' The slaves of fashion will rank first in uselessness, probaably for their efforts are so trivially directed and the results so evanescent, so unimportant. Does it really make any difference, ladies, whether our hats and bonnets have the trimmings massed in front or behind? Not a bit, but last year the whole fashionable world wore it behind, and this year the whole world of women-fashionable women-wear it in front. The hows and ends must be wired up straight, and the bats look almost like fairy sailboats with canvas tent. Next year they may be so flat, in effect, that they will look like sailboats with the masts blown down; one year our waists must be near the middle, another under our arms; one year our skirts cling so closely we look like candles in wrapping paper, another they make us look like animated umbrellas one year we wear square-toed shoes, another we must go into pin points and stack the five terminating members of each foot with a disregard for comfort and beauty, only second to a Chinese lady of quality; one year we are shown that the way to walk is with a swing, striding gate like the notorious Sarah Bernhardt; later on we adopt the crinoline niggle and hold our hands as little trick dogs do when they sit on end to be shown off, etc.

"There are hundreds of thousands of people whose sole business it is to adjust themselves to the foibles of fashion. It is not even good form to advance opinions in conversation. One may talk of what he sees and does, but not what he thinks. One is not supposed to engage in hard work-fashionable people are not—and thinking is hark work, if one digs for roots instead plucking nothing but posies. Besides if we take deep thoughts we compel our friends to work hard, too, and it may not be agreeable. They may only desire to swing a far, smell a flower, remark on the weather, or what foreign sprig of royalty is at the present moment contemplating a visit to our great country, and the great fair at Chicago, where, from the moment he or she lands in New York to the time of embarking for home, a straight diet of toadies is set before the guest. When Ward McAlister manages they sometimes sit on floral thrones to eat toadies, and they wash down the toady with wine at twenty five dollars a bottle. But, of course, we must be courteons to our royal visitors—we must honor them! of course, but while we honor them do not let us dishonor ourselves and go back on our principles inherent in our republican government. Let us e dignified in our civilities, and not send everyone away with the impression that we are hungry for a king, an emperor, or a czar—a court! They must think it is a splendid was applauded to the echo, and was so overpowered that he sight for a monarchy; but it is not-we are not true to ourwas placed in his chair trembling, pale, and tearful. We have selves when we descend to such obsequiousness-homage to royalty. You remember how quickly poor Maximillian was ex-tinguished when he tried to plant a monarchy on American soil. If we treat our royal visitors as well as we treat our own president it is well enough. It is all which can be expected from consistent citizens of a republic. If President Cleveland or Lincoln or Garfield had been entertained by Ward McAllister or of the 400, would anybody think of building rose thrones to seat them on? What would Lincoln have done if offered such an honor? Garfield would have crushed a throne—Cleveland would have declined with thanks, and Mrs. Cleveland would not even let 'Baby Ruth' climb on it to

> "I wish our own royal-souled poor could have the money which has been spent in overdoing courtesy in degrading republicism-only that I would not take from what was necessary to honor our visitors in a republican way. And what is especially conspicuous this year is present ever among the worshippers of money and fashion. An aristocratic, titled, snobbish, moneyless foreign gentleman is considered a great catch by many rich American girls. Too often wisdom is learned from the pages of sorrow, and life's golden dreams cities, we may as well know the worst. end in the ashes of disappointment. We all remember pretty Nellie Grant, the General President's pet, whose bitter matrimonial disappointment pierced her loving father's heart and hurried on his death.

"Walt Whitman never uttered a grander truth than this No one can grow for another! not one.' How apparent this statement is, and yet we are all the time forgetting it. Even we radicals, who know it so well are not very bright in applying it to every day practice. It is so much easier to slide along in the old way than to hew out new paths to grander things, but notwith standing there is that upward tendency in human nature which compels the world to advance, and there are ever ready hundreds of heroic, truth-loving, zealous leaders climbing the mountain heights and cheering on the masses.

"It is easy to speak in generalities, but let us come down to particular lines of work. Let us take hold of the small things-we can not grasp the globe-and do what we can to make the world better. 'We shall not pass this way again.'

"We know that to be a superlative success one must be well born. But we can not go back into the years before we were made individual entities. We can see what ought to have been done, but our work lies in what we can do to make more grand the future years, and to place a more perfect population on this part of the universe. Reform ought to begin with the grandfathers and grandmothers—the great grand-fathers and great grandmothers of the coming children. You all know as well as I can tell you that if you lie and steal and cheat and slander and covet and are unclean in your bodily and mental habits that you are sowing evils, which will blossom and fruit in the souls of generations yet unborn. Dr. Holmes says: 'We are omnibuses in which our dead ancestors ride.' That is a witty statement of the laws of heredity, from the action of which none can extricate themselves.

"Now, let us do what we can to put some fine human omnibusses on the road of progress in coming centuries, so that when from the heights of immortality our augel eyes look which all Spiritualists should rally, viz, the brotherhood of man and spirit communion. This, he thought, would form perfection, we may say proudly and triumphantly, 'I helped misery many times. to make those grand people, I helped by being myself noble, and pure, and knowledge seeking; I helped by crushing out the evil in my own mortal life, and using my efforts to achieve noble instead of the base results of action. How agonizing it is to look about and see now much there is to do and how fast life flies. Every child must begin life only an ignorant little animal and be taught almost everything. If they have an organization susceptible to good instruction it is all that can be hoped for. They must learn their ralation to the world into which they have been launched without their con sent and must fight their way through it. How many million little pink baby fingers get burned on stoves every year learn ing the nature of fire—some get burned manytimes before they learn; and so on all through the long list of things which which must be learned. One of the first lessons a child should be taught is the lesson of kindness and that what hurts his flesh will hurt all flesh. What if a stinging cut with a whip hurts him it also hurts a horse, a dog, or any nerve sensitive organism. They learn this quickly if rightly directed. A dear little boy said to me last Winter, 'I wish, Aunt Emma, you would go and buy some of Jack Hardhide's pigs.

'Why?' I said. "Oh they suffer so! They are in a rail pen, without a dry, place to lie down, for the whole pen is like a morter bedthey all look as if they had consumption—they cough too. Mr. Hardhide throws raw potatoes into the mud when he feeds them and they get them out if they can. Now a man who will keep swine in such agonizing quarters should be instructed, and if that does not reform him he should be arrested for torturing dumb animals. There is no excuse for such slackness. There are certain conditions required for all healtby animal life. These are pure air, wholesome food, clean water, and warmtb. He who has children or animals under his care and fails to provide these natural requirements is guilty of torture as interpreted by our statute laws. A man who will provide himself with a stylish warm overcost to go to Church in and neglects to procure a warm woolen blanket for his horse, which he will take time to fasten on securely, so that it may be a protection to the lungs of the Ouins, who favored a limited organization and improvised a suimal is not capable of putting himself in his dumb friend's poem or the subject. This topic will be further discussed on situation. He needs a touch of that religion which Jesus ever taught. Blessed are the merciful for they shall obtain mercy. Can you imagine our Savior, when he took his ride into Jerusalem, as carrying and plying a huge god, shouting, laying it mercilessly on to the poor beast nutil he forced him to a break-neck speed and entered the city covered with beople. No, indeed. The master was merciful "Do you think there was much of the spirit of the gentle been perpetrated by civilized or those who can be accepted as a construction of Austria and the Kaiser of Germany thought they would have a little amusement, so they got up a race—a long race, covering a distance between the cities of Vienna and Berlini—four hundred miles. The horses chosen were to be ridden the entire distance without rest or food. Think of it! Night and day the patient animals were to be whipped on by Night sides. Light hungranthington, for the amusement of their riders, tired, bungry, thirsty, for the amusement of two nineteenth century kings. What was the result? On the road between the two cities nineteen splendid horses lay dead, failing to endure the ride, and as many more died in great agony after making the distance. Count Starheinberg's fine bay gelding. Athos, bore his brutal master through first of all, gaining him the first prize, but he died in horrible suffering at Vienna after the figish. It were better had the count died and the noble horse lived.

"We feel in our desperation like asking God if there is such a scarcety of men that two such dwarfish moral deformities must wear crowns and be rulers of men! What mother would willingly give up her son to be a soldier under such monarchs? What wisdom or mercy could she expect would be shown? And this German Emperor is the one who urged the Army Bill. The army bill askes more soldiers, lads and old men, from an already war impoverished country, whose women work in the fields that the men may be in the empe ror's army.

"Following the royal example we have had the cowboy race from Chadron, Nebraska, to Chicago. It was not as in humanly conducted, but it was a disgrace to our country. A universal protest went up from the humane all over the country and aroused public attention so that at every stopping place a watch was out for the desparados.

"The Associated Press refused to print the protesting resolutions passed by the people of Chadron, be it said to its shame. Then we have the cow-race from Texas to Chicago when innocent cows are to be hitched to two wheeled carts each containing a male brute in pantaloons who is to drive the cow twelve hours a day, milk her, and make butter on the race from start to finish if she gets her bones through to the finish. Such a performance might do for Abyssynia, where they of feasts drive up an animal and cut and eat its quivering flesh while it moved in pain, but for civilized Americans well, we did not suppose we had such people on our continent! So, you see, there is plenty for us to do. Let us not pass on untill we have tried to do what we can to promote humane education.

The age is full of surprises. In the early part of last Winter a startling revelation came across the Atlantic. We had known children were in sore need of protection in many places, and that societies were working to secure to them kind treatment and education as well as meet their physical needs. But an official disclosure, showing the extent of child murder in England startled the world. It is horrible beyond the power of words to depict, but nevertheless true, cities, we may as well know the worst.
"The paper placing these facts before American readers was communicated to the New York World by F. A. Duneka, of London, Eng.

"Nearly twenty thousand cases of cruelty were dis covered in one year, which is saying that four children were put to torture every hour. These statistics are taken from the official report of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty of Children. 'How are they tortured?' you ask. If you have the courage to listen I will tell you. Think of your little darlings enduring such things! And yet these little helpless, waifs of poverty are sensitive to pain as are your children.

Now will you listen to the diabolic means employed in the murder by inches of helpless children?

LIST OF HORRORS.

Punishing a child by putting pins into its nostrils Putting lighted matches in them.

Lifting by wrists until a wound is made, then burning it with matches.

Biting the limbs of a seven month old baby until they

Forcing the bone ring of a feeding bottle up and down the throat of a three-months old baby until it bled.

Throwing a sick little girl of two years out of a window, breaking its bones and ending its life. Breaking a two-year old baby's limbs in three places, both arms and thigh, leaving them unattended. When it mouned with pain irritably taking it up from its cradle by the broken arms, shaking it, and throwing it down again.

Leaving a baby in its cradle for weeks, until toadstools grew around the child out of the rottenness. Leaving another to lie for days and nights on a mattress

Keeping the stumps of little amputated limbs sore, to make the child with its pain puckered face excite pity.

Tying a rope around a boy of six years, dipping him down

Shutting a two-year old child in a dark closet for hours. Tightly binding the arms of a three year old child together until ending its life Keeping a child in a cold cellar until its flesh became Knocking down with fist a dying boy.

Driving out a baby's teeth with fist. Scourging a child until a mass of bruises, then breaking s little jaw in two.

Tying cords around little thumbs, then tying with exended arms to the foot of a bedstead and beating with a thorn-bush. And these are said to be the minor offenses. What, in the name of God, we ask, can be the greater cruelties?

America has not exactly such existing evils, for our society system is different, less hopeless. Our poor of to day may be merchant princes to-morrow. Not so in the old world, where caste is permanent. The tenement dwellers there to day will be no higher to morrow. Hence the despair and cruelty of their poverty. The newspapers are callous about these things, justice shuts her eyes, and the riot of death goes on.

The death of the children means bread and drink to them. There they have the system of child insurance, which is responsible for much wrong. The very poor can save enough to insure the baby's life, and when it dies the money comes back in a lump. So if things go wrong there is always the baby to fall back on. It is only a matter of a few days to starve it. No court calls attention to it. Only the foolish kill their children quickly-it is so much easter to kill them slowly-and there is no interference. Horrible as is this statement it is true.

What is the reason that if a poor devil knocks down a rab bit in England or steals a loaf of bread the judge will send him to jail, but he may commit such crimes as we have told, and if he "goes slow" he will escape prosecution. It is the tyrant caste, and the king, money, who prejudice the judges and bulldoze justice. And have we not to fight the same evil? Read the record of acquitals and convictions, and then answer honestly.

So you will agree with me that there is great need of enthusing work. So long as there is so strong a tendency to cruelty in sports and obtuseness in moral perception, let us not sit indifferently and see wrong go on. Our young men, and I blush to say some of our young women,, at colleges act like barbarians, as the burning and tattooing fellow students at Delaware College, Ohio, last winter demonstrated. Some gallant editors excused the young women by saying they imitated the boys, more's the pity. We want young women who are strong minded enough not to imitate sin, who instead of burning their school fellows because the boys burned theirs would refuse to reconize them as equals and gentlemen.

Will you say in the face of facts as do I: "I expect to pass through this world but once, any good thing, therefore, that I can do, or any kindness I can show to any fellow being, let me do it now. Let me not defer nor neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again."

He said the power of the Church was largely due to their strong organization, and not to their creeds. He further declared that Spiritualists needed a declaration or statement of faith; that they should base their organization upon their belief in spirit return. The organization so formed would compel recognition, which will only be accorded when it is demanded and can no longer be denied.

This speaker was promptly informed that Spiritualists did not believe in spirit return. It was not belief but know.

Mrs. Howell the noted women's suffrage lecturer, was the next speaker. This lady made a profound impression and appealed to all to help on her work. She decidedly endorsed organization.

Mr. Freetz followed Mrs. Howell. He disclaimed utterly the statement that Spiritualists had a belief. That he said was left for church members. His own Spiritualism was

Other speakers gave their views on this subject of organization some urging national others local organization. Mrs. Cora Richmond closed the conference, her remarks were well received. She favored local organization also national organ. zation if it could be accomplished without encumbering the ndividual whom she thought should have the most perfect iberty of thought and action. It did not seem to her as if the people were ready for organization at this time. After the close of the discussion a committee was appoin-Cassadaga Camp grounds are one mass of living green and the air full of health-giving ozone. The Grand Hotel is kept in first-class style by Mr. Andrews. Mrs. Andrews is a fine actress and a good dramatic reader. Buffalo sends two full car loads to the camp each Sunday morning. The Rev. Hicks is a great success as a Spiritualist peacher of the Methodist style.

Hon. O. P. Kellogg, of Wyoming, is one of the very best lecturers that we have to keep the whole audience in a broad grin or in a roar of laughter, and sometimes he brings tears to their eyes when he very graphically refers to the loved ones in spirit life.

Mrs. H. S. Lake is our transcendental speaker, and ofttimes soars to the seventh heaven in spirit realms.

Hon. A. B. French and wife are here to fill an engagement Mr. French is really the silver tongued orator of the West, and reaches heights of fancy and reality rarely reaches by any other speaker.

The LIGHT OF TRUTH sheds its light over us weekly and is one of our best spiritual publications. The Psychic Research Society is a failure as a practical research society, but as an experience meeting of the livelies kind it is a success. The Forest Temple meetings each morning in the grand old woods are great in numbers and is a good place to see the Indian in all his glory. Mrs. Harriet Van Buskirk, of Buffale, is the leading spirit of the gatherings. No dust, no heat, or any other disturbing climatic element at this beauty spot on earth. Cassadaga is really a paradise for hosts of the faithful. J. Winfield Scott, of Boston, is here trying to raise funds for opposing the medical laws of the State of New York. He is backed by the National Constitutional Liberty League of the United States. The S'oddard Grey or Dewitt Hough material zing seances are the wonder of the camp. But who knows-I don't. Buffalo's secular papers are well represented by Mrs. Wheeler, and we get each day a letter in some one paper whose items show that the world at large begin to know the realities of Spiritualism. The Dunkirk & Allegheny Valley Ry. gives Lily Dale station 480 feet of piatform and depot accommodations.

Perhaps a few lines from a visitor to Lily Dale Camp ma be of interest to your readers just now. Myself and husband left our home, Washington, D. C. the latter part of June. We visited friends in the West, and later have been doing the great World's Fair en route to this place. And right here I want to note a fact, and one that was pleasant to experience. In meeting this great throng of people from day to day every one seems in a good humor, all pointe and courteous, under all circumstances, one to another. I saw but one person under the influence of liquor, and that one was a foreigner. The patrol wagon quickly gave him a free ride to Uncle Sim's Hotel. This is our first visit to Lily Dale, where we received a kindly welcome from its very gentlemanly and courteous officers, where a stranger is made to feel at home within their gates. Every one seems contented and happy here, like one large family so harmonious are they. All seem to have left the cares of life behind, to better commune with nature and loved ones from the spirit life. And in this beautiful place where so many mediums are opened for communication be tween the two worlds, the doors and windows appear wide open, and the spirit world right here, making a little paradise on earth. I have said no place could be so beautiful as dear Onset Camping Grounds, but am forced to acknowlege Lily Dale its equal. Nature and art combined have done their duty equally well. They only differ as one stars differs from another. Fraternally, MRS. FLORA B. CABELL
